WHOLLY WOVEN INTO THE FABRIC OF COMPETITIVE GRASSROOTS GOLF

For the last four decades, Golfweek has been a constant, undeniable force in the world of golf. No other publication comes close to equaling Golfweek's consistent and comprehensive coverage of the game. From breaking news to lifestyle features and across every level of competitive play, Golfweek's unwavering dedication to all things golf transcends the norm, setting the standard by which all others are measured. And it is this all-encompassing ownership of coverage that continues to make Golfweek not only the No. 1 golf weekly among serious golfers, but also the most authentic, authoritative and independent voice in golf.

THE MAN OUT FRONT

NEW YEAR, NEW PHIL?

When the ball dropped on Jan. 1, it felt like a fresh start. The familiar images that we've seen in years past of Phil Mickelson flexing his muscles were replaced with a more confident, more relaxed, and more relaxed Phil. He was smiling, and he was looking good. He was back on the course, and he was looking good. He was back on the course, and he was looking good. He was back on the course, and he was looking good.

PHIL MICKELSON CELEBRATED HIS VICTORY AT THE TOURNEY IN CALIFORNIA. LAST YEAR WAS NOT A GREAT YEAR FOR HIM.

PHOENIX RISING
